Saying sorry !

As adults our emotions at times get the best of us , and apologizing may come by a little harder . For our little ones still trying to understand and navigate their emotions. Here are a few tips on how to work on helping your little understand when and how to say sorry .

*Help your child understand their emotions.

explain what they did that requires an apology .

*Focus on the situation , instead of the apology .

*Be the role model , at this age children absorb all they see and hear . If they see this happen they too will model the behavior too .

*Don't force it . Show and explain to your child what has happened and let them decided if they would like to apologize .
